CRI386H1: Origins of Criminal Justice

Description:

Criminal justice practice, as well as political debate concerning crime and criminal justice, are often influenced by ideas that are initially developed outside the criminal justice arena. This course examines the history, current influence and efficacy of a range of such ideas, such as: the role of religious practice in rehabilitating offenders; military service and participation in sports as preventive of delinquency; the influence of environmental pollution on crime rates; the concept of the ‘problem family’; intelligence based policing and the use of management theories in criminal justice organizations.

Note 2018: The course may will include an optional Service Learning component. If offered, additional information will be provided. Students in the Faculty of Arts Service Learning component complete 20 hours volunteer work with a community service agency and Science’s a reduced study load in the lecture course. Space in the Service Learning option is limited. See timetable for details.

GGR329H1: The Global Food System

Recommended Preparation:
8.0 FCE's including 1.0 FCE in Geography(SOC SCI/BR=3). GGR107H1 recommended.

GGR458H1: Selected Topics in Urban Geography

Description:

Previous:
This course focuses on original works that have been influential to the field of urban geography. The first third of the course consists of extensive reading and discussion of pre-selected “classical” urban pieces. The second third consists of student-led reviews of important urban books. The final third consists of student-led projects devoted to a particular theme (announced on the first day of class). It is designed for students who have taken urban courses in the past who are interested in extending this interest in a non-textbook, more interactive environment.

New:
This course focuses a special topic in urban geography and covers it with more depth than would otherwise be the case in a survey-oriented class. The aim is to utilize this single topic as a vehicle to understanding how urban geographical ideas are produced more widely. Check the department website for the theme (updated each year).

INI333H1: Critical Approaches in Urban Studies

Description:

Previous:

A common approach to studying the city is to quantify the outcome of processes and to rely on the scientific method and quantitative analysis to test hypotheses and ultimately create new knowledge. Critical approaches have been advanced on the belief that the notion of quantification, and that of positivism itself, could be inappropriate, if not altogether flawed. This course will introduce students to a variety of critical or alternative approaches to understanding urban dynamics.

New:

How do power and dominance consolidate in urban settings? How do individuals and communities contest this consolidation, and claim spaces and rights in the city? These questions will be taken up through a range of critical approaches, including Indigenous, critical race feminist, political economy, queer, and anarchist perspectives. Students will have the opportunity to carry out interview-based research on an issue of equality and social justice that matters to them.
